

Informed Consent for Naturopathic Treatment

Naturopathic Medicine is the treatment and prevention of diseases through natural processes and sources. Naturopathic Doctors (N.D.'s) assess the whole person, taking into consideration physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual aspects of the individual.

Naturopathic Doctors use a variety of therapeutic approaches, either alone, or in combination. Treatments typically include the use of nutritional and lifestyle counseling, nutritional supplementation, Asian medicine and acupuncture, botanical medicine, homeopathy, and physical medicine.

Botanical medicine is the use of herbal teas, tinctures, capsules, and other forms of herbal preparations to assist in the recovery from injury and disease. These compounds are also used to boost the body's immune system and prevent disease.

Homeopathy is a form of medicine based on the law of similar – that is the use of very minute doses of a substance to treat symptoms that would be provoked by large doses of the same substance. These minute doses are of plant, animal or mineral origin, and are used to stimulate the body's ability to heal itself.

Asian medicine is a system of diagnostic techniques and treatment methods that have evolved over the last 3,000 years. It includes acupuncture, botanical formulas, and dietary changes to stimulate healthy functioning of organs, tissues, and cells.

Acupuncture refers to the insertion of sterilized needles through the skin into underlying tissues at specific points on the surface of the body. Sometimes moxa (a compressed herb in the form of a stick) is burned over an acupuncture point to help relieve symptoms. Botanical formulas may be given in the form of pills, tinctures, or decoctions (strong teas) to be taken internally or used externally as a wash. Herbal formulas may include shell, mineral and animal materials, as well as plants. Dietary advice is based on Traditional Chinese medical theory.

Physical medicine refers to the use of hands-on techniques such as soft tissue work, and spinal manipulation, as well as various types of electrical stimulation and therapeutic ultrasound for the purpose of treating musculoskeletal and neurological problems.

Hydrotherapy refers to the use of hot and cold water applications to improve circulation and stimulate the immune system.

Prescribing of certain pharmaceuticals can be done by your Naturopathic Doctor. There are 23 drugs that NDs in Ontario can prescribe to patients, including bioidentical hormones, natural sleep agents, and thyroid medication.

What to expect in a first visit

As Naturopathic Medicine is a holistic approach to health, lifestyle is considered relevant to most health problems. Your Naturopathic Doctor will help you to identify risk factors and make recommendations to help you optimize your physical, mental, and emotional well-being.

Your Naturopathic Doctor will develop a case history, do a physical examination, and order blood and urine tests as needed. Physical exams such as gynecological, breast, rectal, prostate, and/or genital are sometimes needed in order to provide information to make a diagnosis or for case development or you may be referred to your medical doctor for these exams and tests.

Even mild therapies have their complications, especially in certain physiological conditions such as pregnancy, lactation, and in very young children. Some therapies must be used with caution in certain diseases such as diabetes, heart, liver, or kidney disease. It is very important, therefore, that you inform your practitioner immediately of any disease process that you suspect or are aware of, or if you are pregnant, suspect you are pregnant, or you are lactating.

Risks

There are some risks, however rare, to treatment by Naturopathic Medicine. These include, but are not limited to:

- Aggravation of pre-existing symptoms
- Allergic reaction to supplements or herbs
- Pain, bruising, or injury from acupuncture, venipuncture, or intramuscular injections
- Fainting or puncturing of an organ with acupuncture needles
- Muscles sprains and strains, disc injuries and stroke from spinal manipulation
