

Staging and Curb Appeal

"Curb appeal is the first impression a home makes on potential buyers, and staging a home can help make that impression a good one. Here are some tips for improving curb appeal and staging a home:

Paint: A fresh coat of paint can make a home look more appealing. You can also repaint just the doors.

Landscaping: Refreshing the landscaping can improve curb appeal. Consider extending landscaping to the backyard as well.

Front porch: Staging the front porch can make a home feel welcoming.

Windows: Clean windows can improve curb appeal.

Driveway: Power washing the driveway can improve curb appeal.

Lighting: Tidy up the lighting.

Roof and gutters: Fix the roof and gutters.

Mailbox: Upgrade the mailbox.

According to a 2021 market survey, professionally staged homes sell for an average of $40,000 more than the list price. " Internet

When cleaning and boxing up items in your house:

- Decluttering

Go through each room, including drawers, closets, and boxes, and make an inventory list.

Get rid of anything you haven't used in at least six months, and donate or sell items that are still in good condition but you no longer use.

- Cleaning before packing

Clean all items before packing to prevent the spread of dirt, dust, and pests. For example, wash or dry clean clothing and fabrics, dust and wipe electronics, and vacuum or wipe down furniture.

- Using telescope boxes

These boxes are good for protecting larger items like framed art, mirrors, and flat screens.

Used other boxes: Standard boxes

- Using a packing schedule

List all the areas of your home from most to least used, and start packing about three weeks before your move date.

- Using a three-bin system

When packing, use one bin for packing, one for donations, and one for trash.

- Setting a timer

Set a timer for 20 minutes and sort items into the bins quickly.

- Designating a day for organizing

Tackle each area for a set amount of time, and put away anything left when the timer goes off.

What is a CMA

No two homes are identical, which is why choosing a sales price or offer price for a home can be challenging. That's where the comparative market analysis, or CMA, is most useful.

What is a CMA?

CMA is a side-by-side comparison of homes for sale and homes that have recently sold in the same neighborhood and price range. This information is further sorted by data such as type of home, number of bedrooms, number of baths, lot size, neighborhood, property condition and features, and many other factors. The purpose is to show estimated market value, based on what other buyers and sellers have determined through past sales, pending sales and homes recently put on the market.

How is the CMA created?

CMAs are generated by using property information from your real estate agent's multiple listing service (MLS). The MLS is available to licensed members only, including brokers, salespeople, and appraisers, who pay dues to gain access to the service's public and proprietary data, including tax roll information, sold transactions, and listings input by all cooperating MLS members. Listing agents generate CMAs for their sellers, and buyer's agents create them for their buyers so both sides know what current market conditions are for the homes they're interested in comparing.

How accurate are CMAs?

The CMA is a here-and-now snapshot of the market, based on the most recent data available, but it can instantly be rendered obsolete by a new listing, or a change of status in a home with the same criteria. Why? The market is constantly changing - new listings, pending sales, closed sales, price reductions, and expired listings.

CMAs can vary widely, depending on the knowledge and skill of the person creating the CMA as well as the number and type of data fields that are chosen. That means some features may not be included.

As informative as the CMA is, it should only be used as a tool and should not substitute for your real estate professional's knowledge and advice.

We recommend a certified appraisal.

Why You Need a Real Estate Professional

Why You Need a Real Estate Professional

Given the many ways to sell or buy a home, you may have considered whether you should go it yourself instead of working with an agent. However, there is no substitute for an experienced professional, and taking on all the responsibility yourself could be costlier than an agent's commission in the long run.

According to the National Association of Realtors' 2019 Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers, only 8% of home sales were accomplished as for sale by owner (FSBO), and of those, 77% knew their buyer personally. FSBO home sales had a median price of $200,000 in 2019, compared to the agent assisted home sale median price of $280,000.

Beyond the price advantage of using an agent, homes listed by real estate professionals get more exposure and their sellers get more support. Here are some other considerations:

- They're trained and licensed professionals.
- They have experience in your neighborhood and your market.
- They have oversight from brokers and state licensing officials.
- Their job is to advise you the best way to reach your goals.
- They know how to present your home and deal with buyers.
- They know how and where to market properties effectively.
- They know how to overcome typical snags that occur in real estate transactions and closings.
- They understand state-required disclosures and look out for your best interests.
- They understand personal safety and security for your belongings during showings.
- They know the best resources to make transactions go more smoothly, from bankers to home-stagers to contractors.
- They have access to the most accurate and comprehensive data - the MLS, the only data repository that has the most up-to-date listing and sales information.
- They know how to negotiate.
- Their job is making real estate transactions successful.
- Their continuing education keeps them up-to-date on housing issues

With a real estate professional in your corner, you'll have a partner by your side to advocate for you and advise you through the entire home sale process. You will learn how to sell your house, land, or apartments for top-dollar & Bonus.
