Seniors Celebrate Successful Fall

The Senior Class of 2022 softball players ended their home season with an emotional Senior Night on Thursday, October 7. Family and friends gathered around to cheer the Lady Hornets on to victory in their game against the New Franklin Bulldogs.

After the first game, each senior led her loved ones onto the diamond for the last time while her school activities and future aspirations were announced. Bittersweet tears were shed by many as they said goodbye to this, their last season.

At a Friday night football game, the senior football players, cheerleaders, and band members were given a special spotlight. Parents received green flowers to give to their seniors, and accompanied them as they made their way across the football field.

Walking down an aisle made by their peers, an announcement was made about the senior's current activities and what they hope their future to be. All were positive and hopeful. The football players were also asked to share their favorite football memory, which added to the already nostalgic feeling of the night.

Many of the seniors are very happy for their high school career to be over, but for some, senior night opened their eyes to just how quickly everything is going by. Congratulations to the class of 2022; your perseverance is finally paying off.

Artist Spotlight

By: Katie Gaines

Amarieaa Collins and Trenton Ames

This month, we are focusing on two very special student artists, Amarieaa Collins and Trenton Ames. Both actively participate in art club, drama club, and sewing club. Amarieaa's favorite mediums are drawing and painting, which she has enjoyed since she was little. "I used to make pictures for my parents to get out of trouble," she says.

Trenton, though, didn't discover his passion for art until he was in fourth grade, when he met a very special friend, Caroline Wood. "Caroline is amazing at art and inspired me to try it," he says. "Caroline has worked on her art skills for many years and it shows in her skill." Trenton says she is his role model in art. Amarieaa's role model is Ruth Knapp, a muralist who creates art to bring awareness to racial injustice.

When asked what they want their career field to look like, Trenton plans on becoming an author, but Amarieaa is still thinking about it. "I really don't know yet," she says. Whatever career path she chooses to pursue, her creativity and positive attitude will work to her advantage.

Both artists believe that practice makes perfection in art. "Art is just like a sport," says Trenton. "You need to practice to be good." He makes it a priority to draw everyday; his favorite medium is colored pencil on black paper. He encourages artists to share their work with others and ask their honest opinion of it in order to improve. Most importantly, Trenton says art should be fun. Amarieaa agrees. "Never give up!" she says.

Students travel to Robotics Lab, Bacon Factory

By Hornet Staff

Mr. Sharrock and his Industrial Technology classes travelled on October 29 to visit the Columbia MACC campus as well as the Swift bacon packaging plant to explore career opportunities for students.

At the Robotics lab, students enjoyed learning about the many career paths they might take through MACC in the field of Mechatronics and Robotics.

Students then came back to the Swift Prepared Foods plant in Moberly. Swift opened the bacon processing plant in May of this year, and the plant employs around 200 people.

Mr. Sharrock said the students seemed astounded by the amount of work done in the plant, from slicing the meat into bacon to cooking it, to packaging it. Marshall Kitchen, a freshman, said he was surprised by how much the equipment cost, saying each piece of equipment was over $200,000, with the plant containing dozens of pieces of equipment.

Mr. Sharrock said he was excited for the trip, as it opened his students' eyes to the many career opportunities for them that they might not have otherwise known are available.

Annual Veterans' Day Assembly to be Held

By Hornet Staff

The Westran High School National Honor Society, led by Mrs. Wertz, has been busy planning their annual Veterans' Day Assembly to honor our veterans, both local and national.

They plan to hold a breakfast from 6-8:15 am for all veterans and their families the morning of the 11th, and a school wide assembly will be held thereafter. The assembly will include readings by NHS members and music performed by the Westran Hornet band and choir.

In honor of the upcoming day of remembrance, the NHS has also decided to do a Power of 11 Cents Drive, in which students donate money, and for every 11 cents donated, a flag is posted on a display in the school. All money raised will be donated to the Central Missouri Honor Flight.

¼ tsp black pepper

Parmesan , for garnishing each bowl

Brown ground meat in skillet and drain, or if using instant pot, saute , drain meat if necessary.

Cinnamon Apples

Katie Gaines

This is one of my favorite Thanksgiving side dishes. They are delicious drizzled over turkey and mashed potatoes!

6 to 7 apples, peeled and sliced

1 box of Red Hots candy

1 cup sugar

3 Tbsp water

DIRECTIONS:

Combine Red Hots, water, and sugar into a medium saucepan. Turn the burner to medium heat, about 3. While the Red Hots are melting, wash, peel, and slice the apples. (thin slices will cook faster.) Pour the apple slices on top of the melting Red Hot mixture, stirring every so often. (I would recommend setting a timer so you don't forget. The apples do not need constant attention but do have to cook down for about an hour.) When they are done, they should be completely soft.

Cooking with Katie

Sharrock's Simple Savory Sage (Chicken) Soup

Mr. Sharrock

1 whole cooked rotisserie chicken. Traditional or Garlic is best.

1 lb baby carrots

1 head of celery

1 box of 32oz chicken stock

7 cups of water

7 chicken bouillon cubes

6 fresh sage leaves

¼ of a onion

2 cloves of garlic (minced works)

½ tsp of garlic salt

12 oz of wide egg noodles

DIRECTIONS:

In a 6 quart pot add all the chicken stock, water, and bouillon cubes and turn heat to high. Snip off 6 fresh sage leaves from the stem and add to pot. Then break up the celery into single stalks. Cut the tops off the outer stalks and throw away. However, I prefer to keep the inner stalk leaves as they are tender. Then chop celery into half inch chunks or smaller if serving little ones. Then add the celery and carrots to pot. Cut an onion into a quarter and add it along with the garlic and garlic salt. Once boiling turn heat down to a slow boil. While it is cooking open rotisserie chicken package and drain liquid into pot. I debone the chicken and add everything into the pot. Some people may prefer to not have the skin added however. In a separate pot add water, dash of salt, dash of olive oil and egg noodles. I prefer to cook the noodles separate because they don't freeze or reheat well. Once noodles are done cooking your veggies should be also. Drain noodles and add to bowls. Then top with the soup.

Note: If you need more water you can add it but for every cup of water you need to add one chicken bouillon cube.

CENSORSHIP

Hidden Realities

by: Cienna Pratt

We all know being a teenager is hard. Vigorous classes, difficult families, putting up with people at school, etc. can all bring stress to someone who is already dealing with life, which, in itself, is already an extensive issue. "Youth and the Fortresses of Solitude" by Micheal Chabon demonstrates the chaos that most, if not all, teenagers feel at one point in time.

His opinion piece on censorship for children and young adults brings the subject to an entirely new perspective. By discussing what it was like to be a teenager, Chabon allows the reader to connect with the piece. He uses his experiences to explain how access to media that he could connect to made his life a little easier. This point of view is rare in a world where people rarely discuss matters with the ones that they affect.

Many modern teenagers can attest to just how at home someone can feel when they find something they can relate to, even if it is negative. The feeling of not being alone can make existence a little easier. However, many parents these days do not want their children exposed to harmful media. Many times, it seems, these children, or even young adults, are exposed to it whether they seek it out or not. If they have not yet been exposed, they are still experiencing negative emotions and experiences in their own lives. Only now these children and young adults are feeling as if they might be the only ones.

If the adults in people's lives hide these negative thoughts and feelings that other's experience, teenagers and younger people may begin to think that they are the only ones in the world who feel the way they do. Eventually, they feel like outsiders. By being exposed to others with similar lives, thoughts, and emotions, people can see that there are different ways to react to things and that different actions have different outcomes.

Chabon's explanation of how being exposed to negative media can help people cope with problems in their own lives brings the long-debated subject of censorship into a new light. Although this article was written in 2004, it is still significant today. Chabon's article is posted in the New York Times, and giving it a read will most definitely not be a waste of time. If you are willing, falling into the rabbit hole that debates tend to be, may give way to a new interest. Figuring out your own opinion could also be beneficial as the debate over censorship grows.

Juniors attend Mid Mo College Fair by Hornet Staff

On Wednesday, October 6, the Westran High School junior class, accompanied by Mrs. Kertz, travelled to the Mid Mo College Fair at the Columbia College Campus. Many colleges from across the country were represented, and students were able to scan their individualized codes at each college booth, essentially cutting down on lines and allowing students to visit more booths in a short amount of time. Students can use what they learned about colleges at this fair to form a basis of interest for future college plans.

Planet Preservation

With Katie Gaines

This month's topic:

The Plastic Problem

I'm sure you have all heard the joke about "saving the turtles" before. Some of you have probably made the joke yourselves. Well, it is not funny. Whether it's a straw, a styrofoam cup, or a Walmart sack, plastic is destroying our planet! It has only been around for a few decades, yet the damage it has done to the environment is unbelievable. Plastic works its way into our waterways, our food, even our bodies-- it sifts down, down, down into the trenches of the ocean, litters our beaches and roadsides, and starves the animals that mistakenly eat it for food. Scientists have predicted that by 2050, if we do not take actions to stop and reverse the plastic problem, there will be more plastic in the ocean than fish.

So what can we do? The situation is not hopeless! Changing the way we use plastic in our everyday lives is the most important step in cleaning up our plastic-littered planet.

GOOD NEWS:

McDonald's has decided to phase out its famous plastic Happy Meal toys in exchange for toys or books made from recycled materials by 2025.

BAD NEWS:

60 million plastic bottles are thrown away each day.

Over 100 MILLION marine animals are killed by plastic each year.

MICROPLASTICS:

Extremely small pieces of plastic that are a result of the slow breakdown of plastic. They are particularly dangerous and have been found in the most unexpected places on Earth: at the top of Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak, and in the Mariana Trench, the world's deepest part of the ocean.

OUT OF CONTROL:

One million plastic drinking bottles are purchased every minute around the world.

GUESS WHAT?

Recycling is free! All you have to do is drive your recyclables to the recycling center. This is a much better option than throwing your plastic into the trash for the garbage service to pick up. (garbage service is not free!)

WHY IT'S A PROBLEM:

40% of the plastic produced each year is single-use plastic. This includes plastic silverware, styrofoam cups and plates, and plastic bags and packaging. More and more of this is produced and is then thrown away.

WHAT YOU CAN DO:

- 1.) STOP using plastic water bottles! Instead, bring a reusable water bottle to drink from at school.
- 2.) RECYCLE your plastic! Milk jugs, juice bottles, shampoo and soap bottles, Walmart sacks, and even bread and cereal bags can all be recycled!
- 3.) AVOID single-use plastics! Don't buy plastic cutlery, plates, or straws. You DON'T need them! Use real dishes instead!
- 4.) DON'T litter! This one's obvious... or it should be.
- 5.) PARTICIPATE in a beach or roadside clean-up.

YOU SEE THE DIFFERENCE.
A TURTLE DOES NOT.

DON'T LET NATURE
GO TO WASTE

Westran Choir Students Stay Busy this Fall

By: Hornet Staff

On Election Day, November 2nd, the Westran choir under the direction of Maestro Ueltschy performed in Columbia. The choir was invited to record for KOMU's holiday program, which will air on television in the month of December for the mid-Missouri viewership. A link will be available soon for those who want to watch the choir perform.

Immediately after their television performance, the choir went to a workshop hosted by Mizzou's choral department. There, they received thirty minutes of collegiate instruction as well as singing with graduate students- one of whom was from Brazil. Impressed with how the Westran Choir did, the members were invited down to Mizzou to join in with the college choirs for their rehearsals whenever they would like to make the journey.

Additionally, last month two juniors auditioned for a place in the District Choir. Competing against students from Hannibal to Columbia, and all sizes of schools, Landen Burkhardt was accepted into the group. On Saturday, November 5th, Landen performed with the top auditioned singers, making a one-time choir of over 100 singers from Northeast Missouri for a concert in Moberly's Performing Arts center.

This week, the choir will perform again at the Veterans Day assembly. Next week, choir members will miss school on Monday, November

15th to rehearse with the Conference Choir and put on an evening concert that evening. There's always something going on with the choir, so keep your ears open and you may catch something great happening!

Band Competes at CMU Band Day

By: Cienna Pratt

On October 9, The Westran Marching Hornets participated in competitions at Central Methodist University. In the morning, they marched in the parade and were judged on multiple factors. Their performance earned them the placement of 5th in the field show and 3rd in parade performance.

In the afternoon, they performed their halftime show of three Micheal Jackson songs for the CMU judges and the crowd. Their performance included the songs "Beat It," "Thriller," and "The Way You Make Me Feel." During their middle piece, multiple marchers added dancing that matched the iconic song.

For some of the students, this was their final marching band competition in high school. This year's seniors include the band's two drum majors Aliya Navarro and Katy Yeo; Treyton Reed, Thomas Coonan, Marshall Wortmann, and Cienna "Nell" Pratt. The seniors were given a special tribute with Senior Night at their most recent football game.

It is clear to see that the Marching Hornets gave it their all on and off the field. Their many rehearsals paid off for an excellent performance. If you'd like to see their show,

Get to Know Ms. Wooldridge

By: Savanah Baker

“Once you are a student in my classroom, you will always be one of my kids. Always” - Ms. Wooldridge

Ms. Wooldridge is originally from Bynumville with her one brother who is completely opposite from her. She graduated from Salisbury High School in 1993. And even though she and her brother were opposites, Ms. Wool is very close with him and his family. She doesn't necessarily have a family of her own, but she is very family oriented. She makes sure she spends a lot of time with her dad, brother and sister-in-law, and her niece and nephews. She has three cats that are her “heart”. Frida, Fernando, and Felipe are her “children”.

Ms. Wooldridge is a very optimistic person, so when I asked her what some of her favorite things were, it was no big surprise that she had a lot. Anyone who has taken one of her classes knows that she loves to read. Some of her favorite novels are “Maiden Voyage” by Tania Aebi and “When You Look Like Your Passport Photo, It’s Time To Go Home” by Erma Bombeck. She enjoys walking, swimming, political podcasts, and the show Supernatural. She also has mini-obsessions with spoons, bounce balls, skulls, office supplies, and magnets.

Students Enter Poetry Contest

By: Hornet Staff

Senior Katie Gaines and Freshman Trenton Ames have been busy this year. Not only are both students busy with classes and extra-curricular activities, but both have taken their efforts beyond the school building. Appelley Publishing created a National Student Poetry Contest, to which both students submitted their work. Although neither won the contest, we are still proud of their initiative. Congratulations, Katie and Trenton, and keep up the hard work!

"Wish Rock"

By: Katie Gaines

Grandma put a pebble in my hand and said it was a wish rock.

*A black stone with a white band,
that one is a wish rock.*

"Makaa wish, then throw it in the water for the wish-hungry waves to chew.

*Then, grand-daughter,
the wish that you wish will come true."*

Wish rock, wish rock, what do you think?

What do you do with my wish, wish rock, after you sink?

I look for you wherever I roam, along shores and fishing docks or tumbling in the sea foam.

But no number of wish rocks will make my wish come true.

No white-striped stone of black in any ocean of blue

will ever bring my grandma back.

September Teacher Survey Results

By: Hornet Staff

In the last issue of The Westran Rambler, we posed a challenge to our students and faculty members. Staff were asked the following: If you had a walk-up song that played every time you entered your classroom, what would it be?

Cross Country Season Ends

By: Savannah Baker

First year cross-country coach Allen Dougherty had a good season with even better runners. In the middle of the season, at the Highland Invitational, Colin Brandow got third place with Nolan Winkler right behind him in fourth place. At the New Franklin meet, Colin was in fourth place and Nolan in fifth. At the Salisbury 5k, Colin finished 32nd out of 77. Nolan was at 23rd and Trent Brandow at 30th. The last meet of the season was the Bowling Green Recreational.

Colin Brandow was able to meet his goal of running under 20 minutes and set a new school record at this meet, running at 19:49. Trent ran his best time of the season at Bowling Green, and Nolan ran under 21 minutes for the first time of the season.

Districts were held in Linn on October 30th. The top four teams and top 30 runners advanced to Columbia. Unfortunately, none of the Hornet runners were able to advance, but Freshman Nolan Winkler ran his best time of the season at 20:29, which earned him 41st place. Senior Colin Brandow battled shin splints and a side stitch, finishing the race in 69th place with a 22:46, and Trent Brandow finished 82nd with a 24:34. Although the season didn't end like they wanted, there were plenty of positives. Coach Daugherty and the returning runners are looking forward to competing again in the fall.

Middle School Cheer Rocks Competition

By Westran Staff

Coach Robyn Maag and the Westran Middle School Cheer Squad travelled to the Kansas City Regional Cheer Competition on Saturday, October 17. Due to the number of cheerleaders in the squad, they competed in the Large School division. Each cheer team had to perform a three minute routine which included a cheer, an original dance, and multiple stunts.

The Hornets faced stiff competition, but after months of practice, they performed a stellar routine. The judges gave the Hornet Squad zero deductions, earning them third place in the Large School Division. Congratulations to Coach Maag and the Middle School Cheer Squad! We are proud of you!
