INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES IN DECEMBER

December 3 is recognized as the IDPD, but let's emphasize excellent dental care for these folks for the entire month of December. Disabled people include:

- Aging and elderly people
- Individuals with mobility issues
- Mentally disabled individuals
- Physically impaired folks
- People with behavioral or emotional conditions
- Those cognitively impaired

Dental care for Persons with Disabilities starts in infancy. The care giver is instrumental in preventing dental problems. A visit to the dentist should take place as soon as the first tooth appears, between 6 and 12 months old. This is the time for caregivers to ask questions. The dental team will help with dietary tips and will teach the caregiver how to care for the teeth at home. Starting these practices early and consistently will prevent severe dental disease.

Excellent dental health enhances the quality of life and improves the overall health of all people in so many ways:

- Healthy food intake
- Speech development
- Emotional expression
- Comfort and psychological ease
- Patient acceptance of oral touching and manipulation

Here are some tips to improve daily home care are:

- Use a power toothbrush with a small head if possible. Or a manual toothbrush with a large or modified handle and a floss holder can make brushing and flossing easier.
- If possible, use fluoride toothpaste and mouth rinse to prevent tooth decay and strength en the enamel. For patients who cannot tolerate toothpaste, try diluting an acceptable mouth rinse and dip the toothbrush in that. Sometimes plain water is okay to use.
- Avoid sugary foods that can damage the teeth.
- These patients should be offered only water or milk to drink. Drink plenty of water to keep the mouth moist and wash away food particles.
- Fun routines are beneficial. A few ideas include singing or counting during brushing; allowing a choice of the flavor of the toothpaste to be used. Always compliment when done with a hearty "Good job!"
- Here are positions which often are easier for cleaning another's teeth: "hygiene in a Highchair," "knee-to-knee" and laying a "swaddled baby: onto a soft rug with the care giver behind the head.
- Clean the teeth in the same manner and at the same time and place every day.
- Model excellent oral hygiene yourself.

If the patient is able to understand, do prepare the person for an upcoming dental visit. There are fun books to read about the dental office. Talk repeatedly about how nice the dental team is and explain that you yourself enjoy and like the dental team. Visit the office first, to make sure there is easy access into and out of the office. Ask the dental team if the disabled person can visit the reception area a few times. Just sit there and read or color with the child, to familiarize the person with the dental office. Ask the dental team to talk to the patient without a mask and white coats and goggles for a few minutes. Ask the dental team if the patient can visit "the back" and listen to the sounds of the office.

Schedule disabled patients for the first appointment of the day if possible. Early appointments can help ensure that everyone is alert and attentive and that waiting time is reduced. At the actual dental appointment, make sure that comfortable and loose clothing is worn. If there is a comforting blanket or toy, be sure to bring that along.

Before the actual appointment, repeatedly tell the patient what will be happening, step by step. There are many books available about visiting the dentist. Before any appointment, determine how the patient will be transferred from wheelchair to dental chair. It is recommended that familiar adults do so.

Providing dental care to individuals with disabilities does require increased awareness, attention and accommodation by the dentist and dental staff. Here are some of the things that the dental team might do:

- Emphasizing preventative measures such as fluoride varnishes, more frequent dental cleanings, and sealants.
- Consultation with other health care providers. An example of accommodation would be sugar-free medicines.
- The caregiver might be asked how to communicate with patients who have a sensory impairment.
- Patient accommodations.
- Behavior management techniques used at home can often be transferred to the dental office.
- Modifications to routine treatment procedures
- Placing pillows from home on both sides of the patient can provide stability.
- Shorter appointment times may be recommended. These require extra trips to the den tal office.

Most general dentists will provide excellent care in their offices for all ages and abilities. Speak to your own dentist first. Sometimes there will be a referral to specialists. These include:

- Pedodontists for children
- Hospital dentists
- The University of Michigan School Of Dentistry Integrated Special Care Clinic

We want disabled people to have the highest quality of life and overall health as possible. Therefore, let's control those areas of our lives we can to enhance these goals. Excellent dental health is a good place to start.

Stay Strong, Jessica A. Rickert, DDS, Anishinaabe Dental Outreach 231-313-8407, jrickert@deltadentalmi.com; jarickert@charter.net

There's nothing quite like the feeling that comes with spotting a majestic buck through the trees. The crunch of leaves underfoot and the patience required to wait for the perfect shot all contribute to the magic of the hunt. We want to hear about your most memorable moments.

We're eager to receive your submissions and share your hunting stories with our tribal members. Let's celebrate the rich tapestry of experiences that make hunting a cherished tradition for our people. Together, we'll showcase the beauty of nature, and the respect we hold for the wildlife that graces our forests.

We look forward to hearing from you!

HUNTER'S CORNER

Hunters enjoy being in nature, sharing stories, and creating memories with friends and family. It's all about going out into the wild, using skills to track and catch animals. Hunting isn't just about getting food. It's also a way to connect with nature and learn about wildlife in your area.

We hope to hear from you to share your hunting stories and photos.

"The buck came out earlier than expected in the day, when I ended up shooting it, I shot it dead center of the lung and it dropped where it was. It didn't run or anything. It was also my first deer I've ever shot. I shot it on tribal land."

Aanii, My name is Sara Crampton and I am a LRBOI tribal member. I'm a stay at home Mother to three beautiful children and recently I've turned a hobby of mine into a small business. I started making hair bows for my Daughter because I wanted her to have bows that matched every single outfit, sport, or event she did. We got so many compliments everywhere we went that I decided to start making them for everyone to enjoy. I use vegan leather and love to make polymer clay accessories to make my bows unique. I strive to take custom orders and to make sure you have a bow for every outfit and occasion. We can be found on Facebook and Instagram at Harper Lou's Bowtique and reached at ThatBowThough23@gmail.com for any inquiries.
