All About Wolves!

Wolves are a very unique animal, there are almost none left in the world. Grey wolves are one of the most endangered out of the other breeds, they used to be killed or trapped so much that there were almost none left. Scientists have slowly been bringing them back to life using other wolves' DNA to reenact them.

Gray Wolves!

Grey wolves are known for their playfulness, loyalty and being friendly. Wolves have been known to mate for life and their pups are born with beautiful blue eyes and they eventually have an eye color that is green, gold or grey. All wolves also walk on their toes or digits instead of their whole foot. Their bodies are built for distance rather than speed, while hunting their goal is to tire out their prey so they can easily strike.

On average a wolf can run up to 42 mph while most of their prey such as deer run much faster, they chase after them until the animal is forced to slow down while the wolf is still going strong. A wolf can normally eat up to 20 pounds of meat at once. Their body is built to eat the food and digest it later on. They leave almost no food behind and even eat the prey's bones. They only have 42 teeth and are always on the move. On average a wolf pack has six to eight wolves in their group.

Amazing Animal!

All these facts alone should make anybody love wolves. They are amazing creatures that are cute, funny and very loyal. Multiple people have made quotes about wolves too, like Barry Lopez who said “The gaze of the wolf reaches into our soul”. Some wolves such as the sea wolf are in the water most of their life. They live around Canada and eat things such as salmon, seals and oysters.

Alpha Wolf!

Did you know that the “alpha wolf” is actually a myth? Instead a dominant male and female lead the pack. Only the leaders of the pack have babies and when they do the whole pack cares for them. When the mother is about to give birth she makes a burrow and the rest of the pack fends for her. Wolves are loved by over 1.8 Million people all around the world! All these facts alone should make anybody love wolves.
