Todays Organ Music

"Schmücke dich, O liebe Seele," BWV 654 (Adorn yourself, O dear soul), traditionally accompanies Holy Communion as a joyous feast. The familiar melody is attributed to Johann Crueger (1598-1662), and true to the first word of its title, Bach has richly "adorned" it with ornaments and melismas.

The Prelude BWV 541 we heard last week is followed by this fugue which will be our postlude today. It's subject is built on repeated notes after which amazing contrapuntal and harmonic passages follow, punctuated by a cadence which launches the Fugue into its euphoric final bars. Listen to the way the bass line takes over, propelling us into the mighty final pedal tone.
